Class 01

Dry White, Riesling (<7g/l R.S) - 2024 Vintage

Judges: Erin Larkin, Matt turnbull, Louella Mathews, Kelly Wellington, Rob Mack, Marie Clay, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman, Jacqui Smith, Lauren Hutton, Matt Pedder

Comments: This was a big class, and surprisingly a difficult one to judge. There were two wines that were clearly elevated to the recall table, and a further seven which were in hot contention. We got those down to four, with a surprise added in by the PC. Recall wines required much re-tasting and robust discussion. No stone was left unturned. Regarding the 2024 class as a whole, many wines walked the tightrope between fleshy and sourt fully resolved ripeness, and there were some calls of diffusion, and out of balance RS. Many/most of the judges comments have been included for exhibitors. Overall, the 2024 vintage appeared favourable, if variable. A terrific set of 24 Riesling""s that are always a highlight of the show. Some very good wines with many showing purity and finesse. A strong class overall . A great diversity of styles .

Dry White, other than Riesling, oaked or non oaked (<7g/l R.S) - 2024 Vintage

Judges: Erin Larkin, Louella Mathews, Kelly Wellington, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: Some real fun in this bracket. The best wines had flavour! Lots of it! With summer looming, this class felt particularly relevant. Some of the concerns lay around wines showing non-varietal character eg a Pinot Gris tasting like a Gewürztraminer, a Gewürztraminer tasting like a Vermentino etc... If you're adding other varieties, take care not to undermine the varietal definition of the wine you are making. Otherwise, some unbound joy to be found here. Good wines.

Shiraz - 2023 or younger

Judges: Erin Larkin, Rob Mack, Marie Clay, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: Honestly a challenging class, although there were some very encouraging wines within it. It seemed that the vintage produced a tranche of wines with more briar/bramble/tannic overtones than an abundance of juicy, supple fruit. Judges pulled back extra wines into the callbacks, just to ensure that ever ""t"" had been crossed, and every ""i"" dotted. We are comfortable now that the right wines got the right scores.

Class 12

Cabernet Sauvignon - 2022 Vintage

Judges: Erin Larkin, Rob Mack, Marie Clay, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: This class was highly anticipated, and the judges were met with many wines that showed lovely leafy fruit and fine tannic handling. There were some wines that were already showing development, which was less than ideal, and some wines looked overtly leafy and sweet fruited, which has its attractiveness, but ultimately feels a little obvious. The balance with Cabernet is a hard one; on one hand Cabernet without tannin is like a person without purpose. It ambles and meanders without focus or direction. On the other hand, aggressive handling of tannin can lead to a prison of texture which blocks the very fruit that makes these wines so attractive. Gently does it.

Grenache - 2022 Vintage

Judges: Erin Larkin, Rob Mack, Marie Clay, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: Some moments of sheer delight in this bracket. Prior to judging we really discussed the merits and dangers of Grenache, what we love to see, what we don't love to see. It was established that all judges on the panel are all fans of Grenache - either from a drinkers perspective, or makers, or both. So, the wines in the class showed lovely fruit, energy and life. The best combined that with some textural complexity and real density of fruit. The best two wines were very impressive and delicious!

Class 14

Other single varietals; e.g. Merlot, Malbec, Tempranillo - 2022 Vintage

Judges: Erin Larkin, Louella Mathews, Kelly Wellington, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: A very challenging class, and judges went into it expecting abundant pleasure and varietal excitement. Many wines looking developed and dried out: 2022 is far too early in their development to be forgiving of that. Many of the varieties tasted here today should be well suited to the Clare Valley, and so it was disappointing to see so many wines underperform.

On a positive note, the three wines on the recall table (a Malbec, a Mataro and a Sangiovese) each offered interest and definition.

Class 16

Dry White, Riesling (<7g/l R.S) - 2023 Vintage

Judges: Erin Larkin, Rob Mack, Marie Clay, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: An interesting class here. Many of the wines appeared lean and hard, leaning on their acidity rather than any overwhelming presence of fleshy fruit. The wines that got back on the recall were hotly contested and the negotiation between the styles was fierce. Plenty to discuss here, and perhaps an awkward time to be viewing the wines - one year in bottle they are neither primary nor yet developing... The best two wines are magnificent, each in different ways.

Judges: Erin Larkin, Matt turnbull, Rob Mack, Marie Clay, Louella Mathews, Kelly Wellington, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman, Jacqui Smith, Lauren Hutton, Matt Pedder

Comments: Needless to point out that this was an exciting class to judge. Judges looking for the winning combination of freshness, complexity, long-term ageing potential and pleasure now. A difficult matrix to achieve, perhaps, but so many wines brought pleasure and joy to the judges for different reasons. Premature evolution was the main criticism of the wines that didn't achieve a medal. A terrific class showing the complexity and ageability of great Clare Valley Riesling. A pleasure to judge and taste through

Class 19

Shiraz - 2021 Vintage or older

Judges: Erin Larkin, Rob Mack, Marie Clay, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: Our largest class for the day, and one that presented more challenges than expected. Comments from the judges really swirled around the surprising amount of wines that appeared dried out, domineered by oak, and out of balance in some way. Given the prevalence of 2021 as the vintage in this class, this came as a shock. RE the best wines on the recall table: the best was a lovely combination of fresh and vibrant, with pliable tannins and balanced oak. Some of the others on the recall table again spoke of oak - far too much - and other characters that ultimately threw out the balance.

Other single varietals; e.g. Merlot, Malbec, Tempranillo, Grenache - 2021 Vintage or older

Judges: Erin Larkin, Louella Mathews, Kelly Wellington, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: The top wine is a ripper. Unreal Malbec. What a treat. The rest of the wines showed various problems: oxidation, potential microbial issues (and if no, then barrel topping being a little underdone), late picking etc.... Many of the wines lacked freshness, and they shouldn't, at their respective ages.

Sparkling Wine - Any Vintage

Judges: Erin Larkin, Louella Mathews, Kelly Wellington, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: This was a challenging class to judge, in that the concerns revolved around simplicity of flavour and texture. The wines were sound, but straightforward. The sparkling red that received a medal was also quite simple in its delivery of flavour, but offered a nice balanced view of the style. The judges liked this.

Fortified Wine – any style, any vintage (to be specified)

Judges: Erin Larkin, Louella Mathews, Kelly Wellington, Dylan Lee, Lauren Langfield, Chad Bowman

Comments: Evocative wines in this class. The oldest wine, from 1975, was the most exciting and emotional for the panel. Thank you to the producer who entered it, it inspired some lovely conversation. A beautiful wine. The constructive feedback concerns complexity, freshness of old material, and the all-important integration of spirit. While the judges were able to find positives in each of the wines entered, many lacked clarity, freshness, complexity and seamlessness. Spirit stood out in many wines, and while one of them was forgiven for this, due to the accompanying complexity and overall attractiveness, the rest didn't have enough "other stuff" to balance the spirit: relying on sugar to do this is not enough.
